President Cleveland Reconsiders His Intention to Visit St. Louis.

A Lengthy Letter Explaining His Reasons for His Action—A Wish to Avoid Unpleasantness with the G. A. R.—No Fear of Violence.

HE WON'T GO.

ST. LOUIS, July 14.—The following letter, addressed to the mayor of this city, who was the chairman of the committee of representative citizens of St. Louis who verbally invited the President to visit this city during the holding of the encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic next September, explains itself without further comment:

EXECUTIVE MANSION, WASHINGTON, D. C., July 14, 1887.—The Hon. David R. Francis, Mayor and Chairman—My Dear Sir: When I received the extremely cordial and gratifying invitation from the citizens of St. Louis, tendered by a number of her representative men, to visit this city during the National encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic, I had been contemplating for some time the acceptance of an invitation from that organization to the effect that I would accept the pleasure which it would afford me, if it should be possible, to meet not only members of the Grand Army, but the people of St. Louis, and to see the place which the occasion would give me an opportunity to visit. The exactions of my public duties I felt that I could not so easily set aside, and I was confronted by the delegation of which you were the head I expected to do no more at that time than to promise the consideration of the matter. I have since then given the matter the most careful consideration, and I am now in a position to give you my answer. I am sorry to say that I cannot accept the invitation, and I am sorry to say that I cannot accept the invitation, and I am sorry to say that I cannot accept the invitation.

ST. LOUIS, July 14.—The feeling of feeling is manifested here on account of the action of members of the G. A. R. which has resulted in the President's declaration of the invitation to visit this city this fall. The general feeling is one of disappointment, and the feeling is one of disappointment, and the feeling is one of disappointment. The feeling is one of disappointment, and the feeling is one of disappointment, and the feeling is one of disappointment. The feeling is one of disappointment, and the feeling is one of disappointment, and the feeling is one of disappointment.

WASHINGTON, July 14.—It is practically settled that the President will not visit St. Louis at all. The President's decision is a disappointment to the citizens of St. Louis, and the feeling is one of disappointment, and the feeling is one of disappointment, and the feeling is one of disappointment. The feeling is one of disappointment, and the feeling is one of disappointment, and the feeling is one of disappointment.

ST. LOUIS, July 14.—The feeling is one of disappointment, and the feeling is one of disappointment, and the feeling is one of disappointment. The feeling is one of disappointment, and the feeling is one of disappointment, and the feeling is one of disappointment. The feeling is one of disappointment, and the feeling is one of disappointment, and the feeling is one of disappointment.

spared by citizens of St. Louis to insure a welcome of unusual warmth at the first encampment of that body ever held in a Southern State, and your suggestion that no compliment more fitting could be bestowed upon the valiant defenders of a common country, and the Chief Executive of a restored Union, and none would be more highly appreciated than that conferred by his presence at such a time and place, enlisted my feeling and interest. More recently indications have been disclosed that, however correctly you expressed the prevailing sentiment in the Grand Army, there are members and some posts of that body entertaining different feelings in respect to my acceptance, and that my acceptance of your invitation would lead to a disruption of cordiality at the coming encampment. Without entering into a discussion of these opinions, and unmoved by any feeling, although I deeply regret the condition I can but regard it my duty to refrain from contributing by my action to so undesirable a result. Nothing can be of greater importance in connection with the encampment than the free and unrestrained manifestation by its participants of that patriotic fraternity suggested by the selection of the place of holding it, and which is at once the proof of the complete success of their arms and the highest glory of our veterans. The Grand Army may enjoy the most pleasant, profitable and useful reunion in their history. Very truly yours,

"GROVER CLEVELAND."

WILL STAY AWAY.

President Cleveland Reconsiders His Intention to Visit St. Louis.

A Lengthy Letter Explaining His Reasons for His Action—A Wish to Avoid Unpleasantness with the G. A. R.—No Fear of Violence.

HE WON'T GO.

St. Louis, July 8.—The following letter, addressed to the mayor of this city, who was the chairman of the committee of representative citizens of St. Louis who verbally invited the President to visit this city during the holding of the encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic next September, explains itself without further explanation.

EXECUTIVE MANSION, WASHINGTON, D. C., July 4, 1887.—The Hon. David R. Francis, Mayor and Chairman—MY DEAR SIR: When I received your letter cordially and respectfully inviting from the citizens of St. Louis, I was deeply gratified. I had been contemplating for some time the acceptance of an invitation from that organization to the same effect, and had considered the possibility of meeting not only members of the Grand Army, but the people of St. Louis and other cities in the West which I might have the opportunity to visit. The exactions of my public duties I felt to be so uncertain, however, that when first I thought of the possibility of which you were the first to expect, I did not at that time promise the consideration of the double invitation tendered me, and express the possibility of my not being able to do so. I am, however, deeply gratified by the cordiality and sincerity of your presentation, reinforced by the heartiness of the people who surrounded me, and I am sure that I shall be able to do so. I am sure that I shall be able to do so. I am sure that I shall be able to do so.

Immediately upon the public announcement of this invitation, I have been thinking of the importance of the Grand Army of the Republic, and increasing in volume and virulence, constrained me to review my acceptance of my own invitation, and I have decided to go to the extent of declaring that I would be an unwelcome guest at the time and place of the National Encampment. I am, however, deeply gratified by the cordiality and sincerity of your presentation, reinforced by the heartiness of the people who surrounded me, and I am sure that I shall be able to do so. I am sure that I shall be able to do so. I am sure that I shall be able to do so.

THE FEELING AT ST. LOUIS.

St. Louis, July 8.—A great deal of feeling is manifested here on account of the action of members of the G. A. R. who has resulted in the President's decision of the invitation to visit this city this fall. The general comment on the President's letter is favorable, the Grand Army committee is disappointed, and the people of St. Louis are disappointed. The President's decision is a disappointment to the people of St. Louis, and the Grand Army committee is disappointed. The President's decision is a disappointment to the people of St. Louis, and the Grand Army committee is disappointed.

THE CITIZENS' COMMITTEE MET YESTERDAY afternoon in the office of Mayor Francis and appointed a committee to draw up resolutions to be submitted to a mass-meeting of citizens which will be called to assemble at the Merchants' Exchange this afternoon. These resolutions will embody an invitation to the President to visit this city during fall week early in October, or at some other time that may suit his convenience, and will also express the patriotic feeling of the citizens of St. Louis.

THE PRESIDENT'S DECISION WILL NOT COME UP AT ALL.

St. Louis, July 8.—It is practically settled that the President will not visit the West at all during the present year. The abandonment of his proposed visit to St. Louis has resulted in a wholly changing the character of the mission which he was charged with. It was said at the White House yesterday afternoon that the only plans the President has made for leaving Washington during the summer are to visit New York for his visit to Clinton, N. Y., on the 13th inst., which will probably not consume altogether more than a week's time, and for his visit to Atlanta in November on the occasion of the Georgia Fair.

An Indian Tragedy that Has Led to the Death of a Man.

Little Rock, Ark., June 8.—The trial of Della Henly, son of old Sara Cho-Fuer, head chief of the Cho Cherokee nation, for the murder of his sweetheart, a girl of the Cherokee tribe, is now in progress here. The tribes have had many fights on account of this murder, and it is estimated that at least one hundred warriors have been slain. All this fighting and the men who were killed are in attendance. The prisoner seems penitent, and when arraigned he filed a plea of not guilty, but at once broke out into loud lamentations and began singing his death song, which was kept up until removed from court. He will probably be hanged.

EIGHT LIVES LOST IN A MINE.

Italian Miners Surprised by a Rush of Water at Drop in the Mine.

MAQUETTES, Mich., July 8.—A terrible mine disaster occurred shortly after noon yesterday in the Sturge-on River at a Metropolitan, Mich. A number of miners were at work in the mine, and a rush of water from the surface caused the mine to fill. Eight Italian miners were known to be in the mine and they are surely dead. It will be impossible to recover the bodies of the men. The names of the victims can not be learned yet.

BLOWN TO PIECES.

A Cellulose Factory Destroyed by an Explosion—Two Persons Killed and Twenty Injured.

ARLINGTON, N. J., July 8.—An explosion occurred in the Cellulose Manufacturing Company's works at eleven o'clock yesterday morning. A Swedish, named August, and Miss Ariana Michmore were instantly killed and about twenty others were seriously injured, none fatally. The works, three brick buildings, were totally destroyed. The loss on the works is $50,000. A number of stores and houses were damaged, and people were thrown down in houses from the force of the explosion. The loss in the town can not yet be estimated.

Flood in the Missouri.

Atchison, Kan., July 8.—Since Wednesday noon about fifty acres of land in East Atchison, Mo., have been washed away by the river. The school-house, which a month ago stood a quarter of a mile from the river bank, was moved east, and the ground on which it stood is now in the river. The bank at that point is perpendicular and thirty feet high. All the residents of that portion of the town have been forced to hastily remove their houses or abandon them to the mercy of the river.

SEVENTEEN LIVES LOST

In a Terrible Conflagration at Hurley, Wis.

One Hundred and Fifty Buildings Destroyed—Fourth Great Fire in the Brief History of the Place.

HURLEY, Wis., July 10.—Fire broke out on the stage of the Alcazar Theater at 8 o'clock last night, and within an hour the entire business part of the town was in flames, while seventeen persons had perished in the theater. The charred remains of nine people have been taken from the ruins. The loss is fully $500,000. The Alcazar was a variety theater, chiefly frequented by miners, and was one of the resorts of an unsavory reputation associated with the notorious dance-houses of the mining regions. Only a small audience had gathered when the fire broke out, and they scrambled out in a hurry. Several of the actors, however, rushed up-stairs to save their wardrobes, and when they sought to escape found that they were hemmed in on all sides, the flames having spread through the wooden building with incredible rapidity. How they struggled to flee will never be known, as none of them, except Sadie Wells and Mabel Powers, were ever seen again. The former appeared at a second-story window and called piteously upon the crowd outside to save her. Before a hand could be raised the flames reached her and communicated to her clothing. She made a frantic effort to jump through the window, then with a piercing shriek fell into the furnace below. Mabel Powers had reached a third-story window. She jumped, and was so badly injured that her recovery is doubtful. The Alcazar was in the very heart of the city. It was a mass of flames in a very short time. The fire seemed to leap from building to building until several blocks became a roaring oven. It was not long before every business building between Third and Exchange streets was in flames. All efforts to get the fire under control seemed futile. The fire department, reinforced by scores of volunteers, sent its pumy streams against the advancing walls of flame, but had to retreat as the fire swept resistlessly on. It did not stop until it had reached the foot of the hill. This is the fourth big fire in the brief history of this place.

Heavy Trestle Falls.

Chicago, July 10.—A trestle work being in course of construction on the Illinois Central road, near the suburban town of Chicago, collapsed last evening, killing Joseph Fox, of Orem, N. Y., and Charles Clark, of Chicago. Fox's son, Edward, was mortally wounded. Albert Bayer, and another son of Mr. Fox received serious but not necessarily fatal injuries. Joseph Fox, who was in charge of the work, was a experienced bridge builder. The structure was built by the Chicago & North Western railway company's chief engineer. Less than fifteen minutes' work remained to be done when, all at once, the heavy beams trembled and went down by their own weight, burying all hands between masses of the trestle work.

Gettysburg Battle Guns.

WASHINGTON, July 10.—Colonel Batchelor, the official historian of Gettysburg, and an officer in the Gettysburg Memorial Association, has received an order from the War Department for turning over to him 140 rifle pieces complete, which, as fast as received, are to be placed in positions where they were used in the battle. This is the number of guns in the batteries of the regular army, which took part in the fight. The guns now to be furnished are not in all cases the identical ones which were used in the battle, but they will be of the same pattern. The order is under an act of Congress making a donation of these guns for the purpose indicated.

LONDON, July 10.—The report of Sir Edward Thornton and Mr. Braithwaite, respecting their efforts to obtain some adjustment of the Virginia debt satisfactory to the English bondholders, states that there was no sincere desire on the part of the Virginia representatives to arrive at any settlement with the bondholders on terms other than such as the State may dictate.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., July 10.—Dr. E. D. Stanford, a wealthy citizen in Louisville, has donated to the city 140 acres of land for park purposes, thus defeating the scheme of a number of other citizens to sell a tract to the city for $400,000.

BABY ANDREWS' BIRTHMARK.

Mrs. De Benklear and Dr. Hirt Headly Fined for Destroying It.

CHICAGO, July 8.—Mrs. De Benklear and Dr. Hirt Headly were each fined $500 and sentenced to thirty days in the county jail by Judge Tuthill today, for destroying the birthmark on the person of baby Andrews, concerning the possession of whom a struggle has been in progress in the courts for several days. Contempt of court was the offense for which this punishment was administered. It consisted in tampering with evidence, and in endeavoring to bring about by means of which the child was identified. Mrs. De Benklear acknowledged having ordered the flesh cut away from the child, and Dr. Hirt admitted having performed the operation. Judge Tuthill, with extreme severity, declared that no excuse could be made for what he had heard could excuse the barbarity which caused the mutilation of the child, and thereupon passed sentence upon the culprits. An appeal was taken.

Dairy Cows Die With Pneumonia.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., July 8.—The health department made a startling discovery yesterday in Henry Weasel's South St. Louis dairy. He keeps fifty cows and supplies a large section of the city with milk. Fifteen cows died during the last week of pleuro-pneumonia, and the others are down with the fever. The milk, however, was distributed until today. The inspector destroyed fifty gallons of infected milk which he found on the premises. An investigation showed that a herd of Texas cattle had been driven through a pasture where Weasel's cows had been feeding, and the disease is supposed to have been carried in this manner. One other dairy in the same vicinity is infected.

Three Innocent Victims of a Mob.

CHATTANOOGA, TENN., July 8.—A big sensation has just developed at Scottsboro, Ala. In August, 1884, a house belonging to one Porter, was burned by a mob. Porter, and George Smith, George and Asbury Hughes were hanged for the crime. Adam Freeman was sent to the penitentiary a short time ago for forging an order for a pair of shoes. He took sick two weeks ago, and died yesterday. Just before he died he confessed that he had been assisting her husband to have a swarm of bees, when they attacked her head, face and neck, and literally covered her body. The work of the little pests was terribly effective, and the doctors say the woman can not live. The unfortunate woman's head and face swelled to an enormous size, and the resemblance of a feature is not recognizable.

Prince Ferdinand is Willing.

TIRNOVA, July 8.—Prince Ferdinand, of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha, replying to the Bohemian dispatch, informed that he is willing to accept the Bulgarian throne, and is proud of the honor conferred upon him and grateful for it. I am ready to respond to the call and devote myself to the service of Bulgaria as soon as the Porte accepts the election and the Powers recognize it."

ST. LOUIS, July 8.—P. W. Fountain, one of the attorneys for Hugh M. Brooks, alias Maxwell, now under sentence to be hanged August 30 for killing C. Arthur Preller, stated that he would make no further effort to save his client. He said he had concluded not to attempt to carry the case to a United States Court, because he did not think he could convince the judges of that court that there was a constitutional point involved.

Thorpe and six of his converts were arrested.

Shafer, prospective Prohibition candidate. The affair will be thoroughly investigated. Mr. Shafer is a prominent stump-speaker.

INDIANA RASCALS.

Perry County Treasurer Makes a Clean Sweep.

Leaving Only a Pair of Suspenders and Three Two-Cent Postage Stamps in the Vault—Prosecuting Attorney Vance Gets Away from the Charge of Jury Bribery.

EVANSVILLE, IND., July 7.—Excitement in Perry County is running high, and in Cannelton and Tell City people are at fever heat. Absconding Treasurer Miller having sent the combination to the vault back, the commissioners had the Treasury vault opened last evening, when it was found that Miller had made a clean sweep, the vault containing nothing but a pair of suspenders and three two-cent postage stamps. Miller's bondsmen are frantic, and are trying to get out of making his stealings good. Some are transferring their property, others making preferred creditors and others seeking other avenues of escape. It will be a hard matter to fill the office, two treasurers having defaulted within a few months, and no man can qualify in the office who can not deposit in cold cash the amount of the bond. Miller's delinquency will foot up about $40,000 to the county and $50,000 altogether. To add to the excitement, Prosecuting Attorney Vance skipped at three o'clock this morning, it being alleged that he was guilty of bringing a jury. The facts in the case just leaked out yesterday, and it is likely that some of the jurymen that Vance tampered with will follow in the prosecuting attorney's wake. Vance, like Miller, stood high in the community. He leaves a small family. Miller has nine children. Floyd Mason, a wealthy citizen, will probably be called upon to succeed Miller, he being amply able to deposit a half million dollars in cash in bank.

ALIVE WITH LOCUSTS.

Literally Eating Up Everything Around Fernham, Minn.

FERNHAM, MINN., July 7.—Trees, walls and buildings are covered with locusts. They are crushed under foot on the sidewalks and in the streets. High in the air every clear day, when the wind is strong, millions of them can be seen going as the wind carries them. Crops of Fernham are a dead loss. The locusts are eating all ready to be counted as destroyed. Vegetation in places is devoured to the root. Elsewhere the leaf is stripped off, and the kernel bared, leaving the bare stalk and husk withering in the sun. Everything is eaten except wild grass and foliage. In some places currant bushes and young trees are stripped of bark and foliage. Numerous as these insects are, this is evidently only a beginning of their ravages. Their increase is something beyond computation.

The Mannix Defalcation.

CINCINNATI, July 7.—Judge Schroder, of the Hamilton County common pleas court, has announced a decision by which the defalcation of John B. Mannix, assignee of the Purcells, is fixed at $314,419.91, of which amount $77,918.11 belonged to the John B. Purcell estate, and $236,405.80 to the Edward Purcell estate. The liability of M. Clements and H. Hoffman (bondsmen) is fixed at $28,000 each, less some small credits, and that of Chas. Stewart, John Holland and M. Walsh something over $50,000 each. Upon this decision Judge Hoadly, who paid $22,500 to be relieved of responsibility, paid more than his share, and with the $5,000 attorney fee allowed has announced that Mannix's defalcation was $28,000, less some small credits, and that of Chas. Stewart, John Holland and M. Walsh something over $50,000 each. Heavy Burglary.

HOPKINSVILLE, Ky., July 7.—News has reached this place of a heavy burglary at Canton, Trigg County, an interior village, thirty miles west of this place, last Sunday night. The safe in W. J. Fuqua's store was drilled into by burglars and robbed of $2,000 in money. About half of it belonged to Fuqua, the rest was deposited by him for safe-keeping by Lester Bros., Lewis Johnson and others, as there is no bank in the town. Burglars' tools were found near the safe, and the work was evidently done by professionals. A reward of $300 is offered.

Suffocated by Furnace Gas.

NELSONVILLE, O., July 7.—Lewis Andrews, son of Paul Andrews, aged thirteen, and August Under, aged fourteen, were found dead under the furnace scales at Buchtel, O., at 6 o'clock this morning. The Quebec Blaze.

QUEBEC, July 7.—The fire in the Citadel was extinguished this morning about 3 o'clock. The wildest excitement existed throughout the city because of the danger to the magazine, the disaster of the explosion of which, however, happily was escaped. The loss is $150,000, without insurance.

Destructive Storms.

READING, Pa., July 7.—Last night's storm did a vast amount of damage in this section of the State. At Weisenberg, Lehigh County, Ziegler's church was struck by lightning, and entirely consumed. Loss $8,000. Near Kutztown, this county, Peter Klina's barn was struck, and destroyed with all its contents. Loss, $5,000. Hundreds of acres of growing corn were washed off by the heavy rainfall. Lightning set fire to the dry timber on the Blue Mountains and the flames spread rapidly over five hundred acres of timber until extinguished to-day by hard work on the part of residents of the neighborhood.

ST. LOUIS, July 7.—The Missouri Supreme Court, in the case of Brooks, alias Maxwell, condemned for the murder of C. Arthur Preller, overruled the motion for a rehearing. A writ of habeas corpus was granted the defendant until August 20. The defense will take an appeal to the U. S. Supreme Court.

Heavy Seditious.

WASHINGTON, July 7.—The Government receipts since July 1 amount to $5,477,437, and the expenditures to $15,967,437; or $10,489,824 in excess of the receipts.

CAN LOCKJAW BE CURED?

Strange Operation for the Dread Malady by Chicago Surgeons.

CHICAGO, July 6.—John Keilher ran a rusty nail into his foot about an inch back from his big toe May 20. Yesterday morning he complained of a sore throat. When the physician called he had called upon to consult asked him to open his mouth, it was discovered that his jaws refused to perform their functions. Another doctor was called in and at once pronounced the malady a typical form of traumatic lockjaw. The man was removed to his home. An hour later the tetanic grin set in and it became apparent that extreme measures had to be resorted to. A consultation resulted in the operation below described: Mr. Keilher was put under the influence of ether. The sponge had barely been applied to the sufferer's nostrils when the initial tetanic convulsion displayed itself. He jumped from the operating slab and made a mad rush for the window. His jaws were set, his eyes protruded, and he fought with a frenzied strength which the combined efforts of four men could hardly overcome. It is probable that no nomination have been agreed to in caucus and will probably be adopted. However, the Salt Lake Tribune, a Gentile and a sham, and says that if the

BRADLEY IN LOUISA.

The great and only Bradley has come and gone. He was heralded by the Republican press as the wonderful orator of Kentucky—as one before whose magnificent bursts of eloquence the most glowing periods of Clay and Breckinridge would appear as a tallow candle before an electric light—as one before whose arguments the logic of Crittenden would seem like the drivelling of an idiot. It was the Bradley whom General Buckner was "afraid to meet"—the Bradley, in fact, who was to rout the entire Democratic host—horse, foot and dragons. Well, the Colonel might have electrified some audiences, but if the speech he delivered in Louisa last Monday was a fair specimen of his stock the audiences elsewhere were very easily electrified.

Col. Bradley began his speech by complaining of the "treatment" he has received at the hands of the Democratic speakers who have skinned him during the campaign, as did Jim McCreary at Richmond the other day. We do not think the Colonel has any right to complain of this. He couldn't wait until the Democratic State Committee arranged for a joint debate between him and General Buckner, but he took the bit between his teeth, curled his tail over his back and went cavorting and snorting over the country until he was brought to a sudden halt by obstacles in the way which he could not surmount. These obstacles were in the nature of successful contradictions of his willful misstatements, and the complete upsetting of his well laid but premature plans. Incensed at this, he disdains to use the weapons of argument, and replies by saying,
"Sir, you are an ass."

After this—to him—unanswerable argument the Colonel revamps the old gag of a full treasury in 1865 and an empty one in 1887. He takes the Auditor's reports, reads here a little and there a little, and thus reading and omitting, twisting and perverting, he succeeds to his own satisfaction in making out Kentucky to be the most undesirable
State in the Union.

No right-minded Democrat objects to fair criticism of the way in which our State financial affairs have been managed. But Col. Bradley's way of stating things is about as unfair as it can be. He dares not say so in so many words, but he says by inference and innuendo that the State officers from 1865 to the present time have been a parcel of thieves. He says, "We —the Republican party—left millions in the treasury when we went out of power, and to-day the State is bankrupt. Where has the money gone?" He knows very well that the books clearly account for every dollar. But, says Col. Bradley, they will not let us see the books.
This is another sample of the Colonel's stock in trade. An inspection of the books was never denied to any one. A so-called committee of the Republican party wanted to carry off the books and records of the Auditor's and Treasurer's offices and were very properly refused, but an examination was never refused.

Colonel Bradley is not in love with the Superior Court, the Agricultural Bureau or the Board of Equalization. These are creations of a Democratic Legislature.
Hence they must be wrong. He can not oppose them because of any good and sufficient reasons and having no argument he endeavors to ridicule them. Having in his alleged mind, utterly demolished these institutions the Republican candidate devotes considerable time to the Blair Education Bill. He draws a pretty domestic picture of a man at midnight taking a "flickering light," and going to the bedside of his sleeping children and looking into their innocent faces, he asks himself if, he being the father of the cherubs, can he consistently vote the Democratic ticket! Grant Moses! Why not? Are none but Republicans to be allowed to have children? If this is one of the Colonel's schemes to increase the Republican party, the sooner those contemplating matrimony know it the better.

The above outline, filled in with a liberal supply of well-folded stories, fairly represents the speech of W.
O. Bradley as delivered in Louisa last Monday.

CHAPTER 12.

AN ACT for taking the sense of the "good people of this Commonwealth" as to the necessity of amending the Constitution, and to provide for ascertaining
the number of citizens entitled to vote for Representative within this State.

WHEREAS, Experience has pointed out the necessity of amending the Constitution, and the expediency of calling a convention for that purpose; therefore,
Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Kentucky:

§ 1. That at the next general election for Representatives to the General Assembly, it shall be the duty of the several sheriffs and other officers of election to open a poll for and make a return to the Secretary of State, for the time being,
of the names of all citizens entitled to vote for Representatives who have voted at the said election for calling a convention for the purpose of re-adopting, amending or changing the Constitution.

§ 2. That any sheriff or other returning officer failing to perform the duty imposed by first section of this act shall be subject to a fine of six hundred dollars, fourths to be recovered by indictment of the grand jury in any court having jurisdiction thereof, and shall upon conviction of such failure, be removed from office by the court in which such conviction is had.

§ 3. That for the purpose of ascertaining
the number of citizens entitled to vote for Representative within this State in the year 1887, there shall be furnished, as hereinafter provided, to the sheriffs and other officers of the election in August, 1887, a registration book, in which the names of all citizens entitled to vote for Representative within this State at the said election. The officers of the election shall be officers of registration, and shall have said registration book open for the purpose of receiving the names of the citizens of the county, from 6 o'clock a. m. and 7 o'clock p. m. on the 1st day of August, 1887, election day at all the voting places in this Commonwealth. And it shall be the duty of all citizens of this Commonwealth who are entitled to vote for Representatives on the day of the next general election in August, 1887, to go before the sheriffs and other returning officers of said election at the voting precinct in which they are severally entitled to vote, and cause themselves to be registered on the poll-book as qualified voters of this Commonwealth, and the names of any and all citizens living in the district known to said officer to be entitled to vote for Representative, or made known to them by evidence on that day, shall be registered as not voting.
And in the year 1887, no other officer shall be authorized to make any list or return of the qualified voters of this Commonwealth, nor shall any return thereof except the registration books and certificates provided for this act be made, and all laws requiring list or returns of such qualified voters are hereby repealed, so far as the year 1887 is embraced therein. The total number of votes so registered shall be the true number of citizens entitled to vote for Representative within this State for the purpose of ascertaining whether a majority of all the citizens of this State, entitled to vote for Representative, vote calling a convention for the purpose of re-adopting, amending or changing the Constitution.

§ 4. The said registration books shall be appropriately ruled and headed, so that they may, and it is hereby enacted that they may, be the poll books recording the votes for and against the calling of the constitutional convention, and for ascertaining the number of citizens entitled to vote for Representatives within the State. It shall be the duty of the said officers of election to propound to every voter the question: "Do you vote for calling a constitutional convention or not?" If a voter shall answer in the affirmative, his name shall be recorded as voting for said convention; if such voter shall answer in the negative, his name shall be recorded as voting against said convention, and if such voter makes no answer, his name shall be recorded as registered as not voting upon said question. And it shall be the duty of the officers holding the election at each voting place in the State to certify the total number of votes registered, and the number voting for the constitutional convention, and to make up the duplicate certificates showing said facts. The registration book shall be by them immediately sent, at the expense of the Commonwealth, by mail, to the Secretary of State, at Frankfort, Kentucky, and the duplicate certificate attached to the poll-book for the election of State officers, and return therewith as now directed by law.

§ 5. The Secretary of State in office at the convening of the General Assembly next after the election in August, 1887, shall cause to be printed and published of the same, transmittal to each House a statement, prepared by him from the said registration and poll-books, showing how many votes were at said election cast in favor of said convention, and the total number of voters registered, whether voting for or against or not at all. The report shall be made up by counties. He shall retain the registration books for the use of examination and inspection of the next General Assembly.

§ 6. It shall be the duty of the officers whose duty it is by law to compare and certify the votes for State officers, to make out from the certificates returned with the State election poll-books as above provided, and at the time they certify the votes for State officers, a certificate by voting places, showing the total number of votes registered and the number voting for calling a constitutional convention, and to send the certificate to the Secretary of State; and if the registration book provided for above shall, as to any voting place, be lost, destroyed or not returned, then the Secretary of State, in sending the report to the General Assembly, shall use the information in the certificate as to any such district or precinct, and he shall, moreover, use the certificate to show that he has or has not the registration book for each voting place in each county named in said certificate.

§ 7. It shall be the duty of the Secretary of State, after the adjournment of this General Assembly, to make out the form of a registration book and certificates to be made and used as herein provided, and to furnish the same to the Public Printer forthwith; and it shall be the duty of the said Public Printer to make up and bind in the usual form one registration book, with a certificate thereon for each voting place in the State, also the duplicate certificates and the county certificates, and send the same to the several sheriffs, who shall see that they are delivered and used at the various voting places as herein required.

§ 8. That any officer failing to do or perform any of the duties herein imposed upon him by the third, fourth, fifth, sixth and seventh sections of this act, shall be subject to a fine of five hundred dollars ($500), to be recovered by indictment of any grand jury in any court having jurisdiction thereof, and upon conviction, be removed from office by the court in which said conviction is had.

§ 9. That it shall be the duty of the Secretary of State to have this act advertised in one weekly newspaper in each county of this Commonwealth, wherein there is such paper published, for four weeks, and in one of the daily papers of the city of Louisville for thirty days immediately preceding the election, and in every county said Secretary shall cause to be posted at the court-house door a copy of this act, printed in handbill form, for at least four consecutive weeks before such election.

§ 10. It shall be the duty of the Public Printer to print ten thousand copies of this act upon a separate sheet of paper and deliver the same to the Secretary of State who shall forward the same to the county clerks of the various counties in this State in such numbers to provide at least two copies thereof for each voting precinct; said clerks shall deliver the same to the sheriffs or other officers acting in the place thereof; and it shall be the duty of such sheriff or other officer to post one copy of said act at each voting place, and another copy at some other suitable public place in said precinct four weeks prior to the election. Any officer failing to discharge the duty herein imposed in this section of this act shall be fined for each and every failure twenty dollars, to be recovered in any court having jurisdiction thereof.

§ 11. This act shall take effect and be in full force from and after its passage.

The Beginning of the End.

The beginning of disease is a slight debility of some of the vital organs, the stomach, the liver or the bowels usually. There are dyspeptic symptoms, the liver is troubled, the skin grows lumpy and unhealthy looking, there are pains in the right side or through the right shoulder blade. The stomach is often an utter prostration of the physical energies, perhaps a flatulence. But if you immediately resort to Hostetter's Stomach Bitter, which is a powerful and effective remedy, and it should be resorted to at an early stage, there will be no reason to apprehend that permanent debility will ensue. The system often debilitated by entirely unwholesome food, the use of stimulants, and the use of other potent stimulants, that produce a general debility, and in some cases a permanent one.

A keen observer can let his eye rove over a rose-bud garden of girls and select therefrom the one who permits concealment like a worm in the bud to feed on her damask cheek, and an experienced mother knows just when a dose of White's Cream Vermifuge is needed to expel the worms that feed on the life of her child.

In the case against Silas Robinet for shooting Wm. Charles with intent to kill, the jury returned a verdict of guilty, with one year in the penitentiary. Also, in the case of Wade Ward, of African descent, for cutting and wounding with intent to kill one Noah Goble, of the colored tribe, the verdict was guilty, with the penalty of one year in the penitentiary.

Camp Meeting Notice.

The Chattahoochee Camp Meeting will begin (D. V.) August 12th, 1887.

Persons who may wish to secure hotel or restaurant privileges, or engage cottages, can apply to or address the undersigned, at Louisa, Ky. J. M. LAUCK, Manager.

Many men of many minds have agreed that Tabler's Buckeye Pile Ointment is unequalled. For any other disease it will do no good, but it is undoubtedly a safe, simple and permanent cure for piles one of the most painful diseases that ever befall a mortal, and we are sure every sufferer with it will hasten to relieve himself of it by using Tabler's Buckeye Pile Ointment.

Mr. Thomas M. Green, editor of late Mayville Eagle, is now a special correspondent of the Cincinnati Commercial Gazette. Mr. Green is one of the best newspaper men in the State, and for independence and fairness he has no superior. He was in Louisa last Monday reporting Col. Bradley's speech, and will probably be here to-day to report General Buckner's.

White's Cream Vermifuge affords immediate relief to children suffering with worms. There are many imitations of this invaluable preparation as far as looks go but are really worthless. There is but one genuine remedy, and that is White's Cream Vermifuge which will surely bring worms from children who suffer from them.

The Board of Education has purchased from Mrs. Jones nearly three acres of ground on the southern edge of town, and will immediately begin the erection of two school houses. The houses will be built according to plans and specifications furnished by S. Floyd Hoard, and will be complete in every particular. The contract calls for the completion of the buildings by the 15th of September, at which time the Louisa Public School will open. The corps of teachers consists of Dr. G. W. Wroten, Principal, and Miss Hannah Moore and Miss Sadie Kirkpatrick, Assistants.

Brother Bradley—Wm. O.—had a large crowd to hear him orate, but this was the result of a favorable combination of circumstances. It was the day fixed for the Republican convention, and also the day set for a grand trial. One candidate for County Commissioner was from Peach Orchard, another from Little Blaine, another from Hood, and those interested in the trial were from the Cat's Fork region. This brought people from all parts of the county, and these, with the Democrats, made a good sized crowd.

From all we can learn the District Institute which begins next Monday will be well attended and will be a success in every particular. Supt. McClure has been indefatigable in his efforts to make the session both interesting and profitable. The Court House has been secured as the place for holding the Institute, and no better place could be found.

The writer of this had the pleasure of meeting Professor Potter recently, and found him to be all that has been said of him. He is one of the most successful teachers in the State, and as a conductor of educational bodies he has no superior. He was the principal Normal conductor of the Kentucky Chautauqua, and as such was highly complimented by the press of the State.

LITTLE BLAINE.

After a silence of about two years, I will give you a few items for your valuable paper.

We had some very dry weather previous to the late rains.

The health of our country was never better.

We have no candidates with us yet, but we are beginning to look for them.

We want no more M. C. L. U. R. in ours.

E. G. McKinster & Co. have sent for an eighteen-hundred dollar saw-mill.

Thrashing machines will begin thrashing in our neighborhood this week.

Mr. L. M. Atkins passed up our creek a few days ago looking for timber.

H. P. Elderman and J. M. Berry went to Louisa a few days ago on legal business.

If I am not mistaken, we have nine sheriffs to do up the people of our county.

School teachers are scarce, so much so that we have had no calls yet.

H. J. Webb is happy. He calls it Elizabeth. It is his first.

I am still one of the toughest Democrats that ever lived. Hope this will not find the waste basket.

Old Hickory.

A Gift for All.

To give to give all a chance to test it, I have convinced of its wonderful curative powers; Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colic, will be, for a limited time, given away. This offer is not only liberal, but shows unbounded faith in the merits of his great remedy. All who suffer from Coughs, Colds, Consumption, Asthma, Bronchitis, or any affection of Throat, Chest or Lungs, are cordially requested to call at the F. Vinson Drug Store, and get trial bottles free, Large Bottles $1.

HEYESVILLE, FLOYD CO.

JULY 2nd.—It might be interesting to hear something from sweet Beaver. We have a dry time.

D. Mart Hager, Democratic candidate for Legislature, passed through here yesterday. He is a mixer, you bet. He is very popular, and will carry old Floyd by 500 majority. The Republicans are preaching prohibition to every one but will not vote that way themselves. The people in this part of the county want a farmer, one of age and experience, to represent them, and say that D. Mart Hager fills the bill. We don't know how to take Johnnie Langley. He told a prominent Democrat on Beaver that he was a young man, had not been in politics and did not know where he would fall; says he is the people's candidate although the Republicans held their convention and nominated him. Too thin Johnnie, you will find there are people in this Legislative district who did not compose that convention. The Democrats in this part of the county have been divided on local issue heretofore, but both parties have nominated candidates and made it strictly a political race. So old Floyd will give her full Democratic strength. Then farewell to Johnnie, the people's candidate.

James Ratcliffe attended the convention and was placed on the committee on credentials. When he came home he said they had given him a big position, he had forgotten what, but he thought he was chairman of the State Executive Committee.

BEAVERITE.

Reviews Her Youth.

Mrs. Phoebe Chesley, of Clay Co., Iowa, tells the following remarkable story, the truth of which is vouched for by the residents of the town: I am 73 years old, have been troubled with kidney complaint and lameness for many years; could not dress myself without help. Now I am free from all pain and soreness, and am able to do all my own housework. I own my thanks to Electric Bitters for having renewed my youth, and re-moved completely all disease and pain.

"P. P. C."

Happy Result of Miss Fanny's Interpretation.

The village of Blue Posts, in the northern part of the State of New York, was almost as primitive in the summer of 1886 as it was fifty years before. The march of civilization and progress seemed to have gone by it about twenty miles on either side, for that was about the distance to any railroad. Blue Posts is not on the road to anywhere or from anywhere, and its one grassy-green and barely discernible highway to the nearest town is rarely traveled by anything but a farmer's wagon, which in summer or autumn conveyed spare produce to market. There was, however, very little of this traffic, for Blue Posts consumed nearly all it raised. Its wheat went regularly to the old-fashioned windmill, where it was converted into a flour which, if somewhat coarse, was believed by the natives to possess twice the nutriment of any ground by steam and purified by some new-fangled process. The wool and the flax were still spun and woven by hand, and thrifty housewives prided themselves on their skill with the wheel and loom and knitting-needles. Little was brought into Blue Posts from the outside world save occasional letters, books and stationery, and for these the demand was so limited that the postmistress' son, who twice a week rode on a slow and venerable pony to get the mail from T-town, was able to bring all that was needed, in addition to the usual quantum of post-office matter—generally about five letters and seven newspapers. The journey to T-town was a two days' affair, for the pony had to be stabled there over night, his aged and knotted limbs being unequal to more than a single trip in twenty-four hours.

Blue Posts boasted a population of two hundred and fifty souls, including one old Indian squaw, concerning whose possession of that super-mundane essence many people have grave doubts. There were dark rumors that she was a witch, and many believed in her powers of forecasting the future. None knew her age, but her face looked like a pathway on which time had left its tracks so deeply and so closely that it seemed well-nigh impossible to squeeze in another seam or wrinkle. Tradition had it that Blue Posts had grown up around her, and she encouraged the idea that its prosperity depended upon her continued existence—an idea which she made take the practical form of levying contributions of food and clothing.

A stranger rarely found his way to Blue Posts, and when he did he was generally almost as much an object of fear as wonder. He was nearly always a peddler or a tramp, and in either case his advent was the signal for the barring of shutters and the locking of doors—precautions which at other times were rarely taken. The masculine gender has been used in referring to the stranger, for one of the softer sex had only once penetrated there in the five years preceding the date of which I am writing, and she had come by mistake, her proper destination being Painted Posts. It seemed that she had lost her written directions, and remembered only that she wanted to go to some posts. When she arrived she was penniless, and a subscription had to be raised in order to get rid of her.

The population of Blue Posts remained for years at about the figures previously given, for the natural increase was offset by the departure from time to time of adventurous youths who felt their energies cramped by its narrow limits. Occasionally one of these would come back for a brief visit, bearing with him the marks of city culture, and won admiration from the girls, and excited the envy or contempt of the young men. But with all its exclusion from the outer world, Blue Posts was not so ignorant or boorish as might be imagined. It boasted a "school-marm" who had once taught in Cohoes, and was never tired of descending on the tremendous excitement and wonderful glut of amusement that town afforded; a book club existed among the girls, and if they did not get all the latest novels, they managed to secure a supply of sounder literature than the production of "Ouida," "The Duchess," or other sensational authors.

Such being the condition of Blue Posts on the 15th of June, 1886, it is easy to imagine the agitation into which its inhabitants were thrown when the report flew rapidly from house to house that on the previous night a stranger had arrived, and had secured board at Thompson's farm and given out his intention of staying some time. The duration he had fixed varied, according to the relations, from a week to two years, but all agreed that he was young, good-looking, and, though he carried a pack, not a peddler. Why he had gone to Thompson's was unknown, and the proprietor of every other decent house said the stranger had made a big mistake, and would be sorry before the day was in. The excuses made to call at Thompson's that morning were numerous and ingenious, but the callers found little reward. The stranger had risen early, and taking a lunch with him, had gone off for a day's sketching. All that was learned was that his name was Harry Willard, and that he had paid for his first week's board in advance. Mrs. Thompson had not intended to give this last piece of information, but she was goaded thereto by the remarks of Abner Woollett's wife to the effect that "she didn't believe in harboring them as didn't give a full account of themselves." Now Mrs. Woollett's desire to turn a penny was so proverbial that jealousy of another's having secured a paying boarder was generally understood to be at the bottom of her distrust, and her observation about her not being 'willin' to make herself a servant to no stranger did not arouse Mrs. Thompson's ire.

If Blue Posts did not see much of Harry Willard on the day after his arrival, it made up for lost time on the next. Before sundown he had made the acquaintance of nearly every girl, woman and child in the village, and in the evening, at the combination grocery and saloon, met many of the men, and pledged their acquaintance in draughts of home-brewed. The succeeding day completed his introduction. He knew every one in Blue Posts, and remembered nearly all their names, and in some instances knew how many children and babies went to make up a family. Before the week was over Harry Willard "ran the village." He made portraits of all the pretty girls, got up barn dances, organized picnics, extemporized charades, and introduced a dozen forms of amusement hitherto unknown. Of course all the girls were in love with him, and their former hostile admirers were utterly eclipsed. Willard did not single out any particular object for his attentions. Pretty little Mollie Thompson and the tall, majestic Helen Woollett contended in vain for his undivided homage. They were not any more rewarded than coquettish Susan Strong, who seemed to delight to try to keep him at a distance. He was friendly with all, but made love to none, not even to Fanny White, the cleverest, the handsomest and the quietest of Blue Posts' beauties. It was reported that more than one of these had been seen going to or returning from the squaw's cottage, and it was even hinted that they sought love plibbers and charms. Certain wild flowers that are supposed to show the intentions or constancy of lovers were also noticed to be in great demand.

In all the freedom of his intercourse with young and old Harry Willard never revealed his profession or business, and when questioned on the subject would turn off the interrogator with a joke. Why he had come to Blue Posts also remained a mystery, and his statement that he had hit upon it by chance while on a walking tour was not believed. The truth is so simple that persons looking for secrets unhesitatingly reject it. Whatever brought him to the village, he found sufficient charm there to remain for nearly two months. Then he disappeared as suddenly as he had come. Early one morning one of Thompson's small boys arrived at the house of each young lady in Blue Posts, and presented her with an addressed envelope. On this being opened, its contents were found to be a card bearing in engraved characters the words:

HARRY WILLARD,
No. — East Fifth Street,
New York.

Inquiry of Thompson's boy elicited the news that "Master" Willard had got a letter the day before, and told mother he must go to York "terwince," and he'd buckled on his pack and footed it at daylight. That afternoon the book club met, and all the girls were there. The event of the day—Willard's disappearance—was too all-absorbing to permit of any other subject being discussed. All had received cards exactly alike, but none knew what they meant. What were the mystic words represented by those cabalistic capital initials?

"I think," said Mollie Thompson, "they stand for Policeman in Plain Clothes."

"O, nonsense!" This was the remark of a chorus.

"You may say 'nonsense,'" retorted Mollie; "but he was very mysterious, and it is my belief that he was after some one or something."

"Yes; you thought it was you," exclaimed spiteful Jenny Firth.

"I never did, you nasty mean thing! Anyway, he never looked at you."

"Don't quarrel, girls," exclaimed Helen Woollett. "We want to hear what one of you has to say about these letters. I think they mean Professional Painter in Colors."

"Bosh!" cried Susan Strong; "he didn't paint well enough to be a professional. I don't know what they stand for, but I know what they ought to, and that is: 'Faltzy, Perfured Coxcomb.'"

"Listen to her!" shrieked Mollie; "she wants us to believe he made love to her!"

"I should be too proud to want to make out that I'd been jilted," observed Jenny Firth.

"You're all real mean, and I won't stay with you," exclaimed Susan, as she flounced out of the room and banged the door behind her.

"I imagine," said Martha Laidlaw, who was serious-minded, "those letters mean Priest of the Protestant Church."

"O, but he wasn't a bit like a priest," objected Jenny; "and there are no priests in the Protestant Church."

"Yes, there are," replied Martha. "If you read the service, you will see lots about priests and deacons."

"What's the matter with you, Fanny White?" inquired Mollie. "You haven't suggested any thing, and you're generally smart enough."

"I don't understand it," said Fanny, quietly.

Some wilder interpretations than those given above were made, but none were given acceptable, and the meeting broke up in as complete ignorance as when it assembled.

Months passed on, and nothing more was heard of Harry Willard. Affairs gradually resumed their wonted quiet in Blue Posts. To the close observer only two changes might have been noticeable as the possible result of Willard's visit: one was that the squaw received and wrote several letters, though up to that time she had never been known to have a correspondent, and it had not been suspected that she could read or write; the other was that Fanny White charged herself with looking out for the comfort of the squaw—a task that had hitherto been irregularly and fitfully performed by the charitable of the village.

It was nearing New Year's when, at meeting of the club, Fanny announced, with a little tremor in her voice, that she had some important news to tell. To the vociferous demand for immediate enlightenment she faltered: "I am going to be married on New Year's."

"Who to?" was the general inquiry.

"The correct use of the pronouns being a refinement unknown to Blue Posts."

"Harry Willard!" exclaimed Jenny.

"But you have never seen him since he left."

"No; but we've written to each other a great deal."

"And pray how did that come about, Miss Decolful?"

"All because of those letters he put on the card. You couldn't make them out, but I thought I could. I never asked him if I was right, but I fancy I was. Anyway, it's turned out all right."

"And what did you think the letters meant, Mrs. Willard as it is?"

"Why," answered Fanny, "Please Plan Correspondence,"—Julian Magnus, in Harper's Bazar.

HE WAS VERY CALM.

How a Brave Dakota Man Kept Up the Courage of Four Unprotected Females. A well-known resident of Sioux Falls was out driving in the country one day last week. While coming back, and when about four miles from the city, a heavy wind came up. To the well-known resident it looked cyclonic, and he drove up to the first house. He went in and found three or four ladies, who were alone in the house and somewhat frightened.

"There is no danger, ladies, no danger, I assure you. Simply a straight wind—no cyclone. Keep cool. By the way—there is a cellar under the house?"

"Yes, sir."

"Um!—that is good. No danger, though, as I said. Pray keep calm and it will be over directly. Where—where did you say the cellar door was?"

"Over there in the corner."

"Ah, yes, that is good. Yes, I'll open it—might as well be open as shut you know. There will be no need of going down, however. Simply a little thunder shower accompanied by wind."

"We're not very much frightened."

"Of course not—that's right—neither am I." Just then the house began to shake, and the limb of a tree scratched against the window. "Don't be at all alarmed, ladies, you keep right still. Good cellar, I suppose," he added, peering down.

"Yes."

Here a board blew off the fence and slapped against the side of the house.

"I'm going down a moment, ladies, don't be frightened; the house is safe," and he shot down the stairs, slipped off a broken step towards the bottom and landed in a box of eggs. "Stay right where you are, ladies," he shouted from the cellar; it is about all over now."

Just then the wind blew open the outside cellar door and an empty barrel rolled down.

"Great—oh, nothing, nothing at all!" howled the man as he leaped over to the other side of the cellar, "try and be calm, ladies. This wind will purify the atmosphere. You aren't scared much, I hope?"

"O, no, not much."

"That's right; keep up your courage—ladies are usually so easily frightened. Say," as he tried to dig his eyes, which was blowing in, out of his, and stepped in a crock of butter, "say, would one of you mind going around and shutting that outside door?"

"We will when it stops blowing a little."

Then an empty box tipped over and rolled down the stairway, the wind roared louder than ever and there was a sharp clap of thunder.

"Be calm, ladies; try and be calm for your own sakes! O, great heavens! it's going, it's going!" he groaned as he crouched in one corner in a box of glass fruit cans and thought he saw one corner of the house raise a little.

"O, goodness me, I'm lost—it's going sure! Keep cool, ladies, there is no danger! For heaven's sake see that corner floor up! Be calm, ladies, simply a little flurry of wind! O, I'd give a thousand dollars to be out of this!" and he dug his feet into the box and broke two cans of strawberries. Try and bear up, ladies! It will soon be over! O, if I ever get out alive I'll leave this blasted country! Good gracious! ladies, when are you going to shut that door? Be calm! Be calm! but shut that door!"

"Mollie has gone out to shut it now—the wind is all over," replied one of the ladies.

"Yes, it's all over, I know," replied the man, cautiously coming to the foot of the stairs, "I told you it soon would be. You see there was no reason for becoming so alarmed. But you ladies always will, you always will," he added, as he came on up and peered out the corner of a window. "I don't doubt that you would have been still more scared if I had not happened along and made you understand there was really no danger."

Then he went out and started for town. But just before he got there the man who lived at the house, having arrived home meantime, overtook him paying a big white horse, and made him pay $2 for the fruit and seventy-five cents for the eggs, and took a five-dollar bill and said he didn't have any change and rode off with it.—Dakota Bell.

—Growing Too Fast.—A man with a large family was complaining of the difficulty of supporting all of them. "But," said a friend, "you have some big enough to earn something for you now."

"The difficulty is they are too big to work," was the disconsolate father's reply.—N. Y. Ledger.

JEWS IN RUSSIA.

The Lands Controlled by Them in the Various Provinces of the Empire.

For a number of years a commission has been engaged making inquiries in regard to the number of Jews in Russia, and especially as to their standing as land-owners. It is the intention of the Russian Government, as soon as the report is published, to enact measures relating to Hebrews. Some of the figures have already been made public, and the result forms an interesting study. In the sixteen governments south and west of the Empire there are 2,390,639 Jews of both sexes, out of a total population of 15,500,000. This is 11 1/2 per cent. of the whole population. In Lithuania and White Russia the Hebrews are most numerous, and in Little Russia there are very few. There is one to every five in Minsk, and in Kharkov the ratio is one to every 250. The Jews settle principally in towns and villages, rather than in large cities that are under the direct control of the government. In the village of Froki 92 per cent. of the population are Hebrews. There are in the above-mentioned provinces 137,000,000 acres of land, and it is shown that they have purchased 1,800,000 acres from the nobility since 1861, and as tenant farmers they hold 5,250,000 acres. It is a strange fact that they do not cultivate the lands themselves, but sublet them to the peasants of the villages. In this way they act as middlemen, and as a natural consequence their profits have been very large. In a number of places, if the reports are to be relied upon, they have hired land at one or two roubles, and sublet it at five and six roubles per acre. They have obtained long leases of good agricultural land in Bessarabia, which belongs to foreign convents or religious sects, and have sublet for twenty-five roubles for three acres. In Podolia nearly all the holdings belong to Jews, who speculate constantly with the crops raised by the farmer. The system of agriculture under the supervision of these few land-owners is poor, because the soil in many instances is exhausted by the demands made upon it. Every acre of ground is worked, so that the farmer can raise sufficient money to live upon and pay the rent asked by his landlord. This has depreciated the value of the land at least 30 per cent. within the last decade. The Jews are great speculators, and they are extending their ownership in land throughout the whole Russian Empire.—Demorest's Monthly.

CHRONIC RHEUMATISM.

How a Case of Ten Years' Standing Was Cured in a Trice.

It is a curious fact, to which we call the attention of the medical fraternity of this country, that chronic rheumatism can be cured. The remedy is of the most allopathic and heroic character, consisting, as it does, of the outward application of two shot-guns and a mad dog, the whole "to be well shaken before taken." The pathetic story of John Hendricks, of Warsaw, Ga., will be regarded as a demonstration of the theory known as the mind cure, and this fact makes the case still more exciting. Hendricks had the rheumatism for ten years—that is, he thought he had. He was so impressed with this unfortunate idea that his legs did their best to themselves in a bow knot and succeeded remarkably well. His arms were also doubled up in the most remarkable fashion—or at least that was the notion he had about them.

One day, while sitting under a live-oak tree, a mad dog chanced that way and two men with guns in hot pursuit. Suddenly shots were heard and the live-oak was well peppered. All at once Hendricks' opinion about his rheumatism was changed. He concluded in a trice that he didn't have any, or at any rate not enough to prevent him from getting out of the way. He jumped up, therefore, danced a war dance, yelled to the sportsmen and then made for home with the speed of a deer. Since that time he has had no rheumatism.

However, there's no use to call it a miracle. The cure was effected by cold lead and a mad dog.—N. Y. Herald.
